success of the general sprinkling movement, he calls forth from the people such protests as the one from “Housekeeper” in another column, and a great many more of them than the Post-Dispatch has room for.

THE MAYOR’S BOAT.

In enumerating his management of the $650,000 among the brilliant successes of his administration, and boasting at the same time that the city now gets interest at the rate of 3.91 on current balances, while paying only 3.65 on its bonds, Mayor FRANCIS prefers a claim that challenges criticism to a certain extent.

The case with which Missouri’s $3.90 bonds were placed at a premium of 2.78 fully justified the expectation that St. Louis bonds of the same rate would be snapped up at par, if not at a premium. But instead of advertising for bids and giving outside capitalists an opportunity to carry this debt for us, the scheme of keeping the new bonds at home and sending St. Louis money away to pay the old ones was adopted. The city was canvassed for pledges of subscription and books were opened for a great popular home loan. But business prosperity and activity offered more profitable investments for St. Louis capital, and the scheme failed. The rate was raised to 2.65, and although over two millions of it was taken—enough to make St. Louis one of the tightest money markets in the country at the beginning of the fall business season—part of the loan remains untenanted and buyers are said to be offering at less than par the bonds already taken.

The increase of the bank bid from 3.90 to 3.91 for the city deposits shows how the Mayor’s management has increased the stringency of the local money market. It has to some extent handicapped the commerce and industries of the city, and it has placed the credit of the city in unfavorable contrast with that of the State, when nothing but mismanagement prevented the placing of city bonds in the Eastern money market on as favorable terms as Missouri bonds. The Mayor went well in appealing to the patriotism of local capitalists, and they manifested a commendable amount of it, but the net financial result of his manipulation of the money market is not a dazzling success.

O’BRIEN’S ARREST.

From Dubin I hear that Mr. Balfour is putting more nails in his political coffin by arresting Mr. O’Brien for alleged seditions language used at Bray. He was arrested at 7 o’clock last evening while bidding good by to the mail steamer to Mr. Labouchere and Mr. Brunner, M. P., on their departure for England to take part in the debate this evening.

Mr. O’Brien had written to some of his colleagues to go over to England also to take a share in the debate, but he decided yesterday morning not to go, but to await the expected arrest in Dublin. He was taken to the Imperial Hotel, where a crowd soon gathered. They were very enthusiastic and at last Mr. O’Brien stepped out on a balcony and addressed them, though an officer charged with the arrest had desired him to pledge himself not to speak, which Mr. O’Brien refused to do.

Mr. O’Brien was arrested.

THE PEOPLE’S FORUM.

His Honor Claims Too Much.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Sunday’s Globe-Democrat makes the Mayor claim credit for the general sprinkling now being done at the expense of the city. Surely he has no right to do this, and the only obfuscation was put in by the administration, and when the pressure of public opinion forced the Mayor to do this, he did it in the name of the people of Mitchellstown. And every night that I sleep on a prison plank bed, I shall sleep more soundly than Mr. Baldwin. For I shall know that while I sleep in my plank bed, the people of Mitchellstown thank their stars for their own roofs, and that they are safe from the cut-throats of the crewmen. I will not trust myself to speak of what took place at Mitchellstown on Friday, and of the cold-blooded and cowardly murder. I will only say that I am proud of the men who will stand by me, and I shall be proud to suffer for such men and for such a cause. To-night, when I went down to Kilkenny to see our English friends off to Ireland and I promised you—these men, of course, only carry out their instructions—I promise you that if the Irish people can only act with the heart and with the spirit of the men who held the square at Mitchellstown, the day is coming, and is coming fast, when the bayonets will fall out of the hands of the rebels, and that we will be right in Dublin Castle as prisoners, the night will come soon when we will go to Dublin Castle as victors in the Irish cause.

GOING TO MITCHELLSTOWN.

Immediately after the delivery of this speech the Lord Mayor arrived on the scene and had an interview with Mr. O’Brien, who was then informed by the Superintendent that he would be required to remain at the hotel till 4 o’clock in the morning, when he would be handed over to the constabulary for removal to Mitchellstown. At 4 o’clock a small crowd was still collected outside of the hotel corridors, cheering being given occasionally for Mr. Parsons, Mr. O’Brien and the plan of campaign.

O’BRIEN AT MITCHELLSTOWN.

In the Court of Criminal Correction to-day Mat O’Brien, who pleaded guilty to stealing $1 from George Western of No. 27 Convent street, was sentenced to one year in the Workhouse.

Hugo Dierster was tried for stealing a guitar valued at $10 from John A. Kohler of 1109 North Ninth street, and sentenced to three years in the Workhouse.

Noelle prosequit was entered in the cases of Hugo Dierster, charged with embezzlement. Dierster was sentenced to 18 months.

IT should not be concluded that civil-service reform is a failure simply because incompetent or unworthy men have failed to enforce it. One might as well say that criminal statutes are failures because they do not abolish crime.

MR. THEODORE ROOSEVELT is again being stirred himself with ebullient freshness in New York politics. For a practical politician, ROOSEVELT is too strongly suggestive of a green watermelon. The New York Republicans pulled him without thumping him, and now they are sorry for it.

GOING TO MITCHELLSTOWN.

The New York WORLD has sustained its record for unrivaled enterprise by learning all about the Thistle’s keel, full account of which was published in Sunday’s WORLD. So much for getting at the bottom facts.

MAHONE is suing RIDDLERBERGER for campaign money furnished when they were pulling together in political harness. The suit was instituted when Riddlerberger refused to march any longer under MAHONE’s picture; and it is understood to be prompted by a feeling of revenge.

MR. THOEBE has undertaken the contract of demolishing a hostile majority. He is hardly equal to such a task and should engage JOHN SHERMAN to help him out with the old Pinkstonian style of prestidigitation. It is quite certain, however, that this species of arithmetical trickery has somewhat gone out of fashion since 1876.

THE war in Ireland grows more formidable every day. The conjurers of the Tory majority cannot control the spirit which arose at their bidding. Like a magician bound in the spell of his own incantation, they are powerless to alight the tempest which they have invited and provoked. The situation calls for another election and a Liberal majority in the House of Commons.

It is vaguely rumored that Mr. CLEVELAND, in the event of his renomination, will insist on having the rest of the Democratic ticket made out to suit himself. The best friends of the President will hope that the rumor is unfounded. Both ends of the ticket will be arranged to suit the National Democratic Convention; and whoever shall be chosen for the first place will have as big a contrast as he wants in attending to his own end of the combination.

THE credit due to Mayor FRANCIS for valuable public service in the gas fight and on other important occasions, is cheerfully and generally accorded to him. But when in a Globe-Democrat interview he credits his administration—with the

THE SAD TERMINATION OF THE SHOOT AT MAYHALL.

Another Sudden Death in the Pease—Dr. Mackenzie's Knighthood—Ex-Empress Eugenie—The German Crown Prince—Theatrical Fie-Tapse—Athletic English women—An American Entertainment.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, September 12.—Lord Lovat, owner of the beautiful castle leased by Vanderbilt, and whose death was cabled on Tuesday last, had gone to Mayhall for a few days shooting with Mr. Macintosh. A shooting party went out Tuesday forenoon. They had not gone far when Lord Lovat fell and he was dead when Mr. Macintosh reached him. Lord Lovat was 61 years of age. The title of the Barons of Lovat was given to him. Lord Lovat was a Catholic and a Liberal in politics. The estate is one of the finest in the Highlands. It covers upward of 170,000 acres.

LORD COMPTON'S DEATH.

Another sudden death in the peerage is that of Lord Compton at the early age of 88. By his death Lord William Compton, late Member of Parliament for Southwest Warwick, becomes the head of the Marquess of Northampton. The present Lord Compton is the husband of Miss Baring, daughter and heiress of the second Lord Ashburnham. There have been a number of changes in connection with the death of Lord Compton, who died suddenly, the only attorney for the deceased, and shone his hand over the court-room had become so much necessary for the Court of Appeal that it caused the verdict had subsided, May.

EX-EMPEROR ALEXANDER.

Ex-Emperor Alexander, who has been visiting the Queen, is on very intimate terms with England's sovereign; the two ladies have a common sympathy in their love for funerals and their devotion to the contemplation of melancholy mortuary subjects. The ex-Emperor is to have a tremendous funeral ceremony on the remains of her husband and son, which have during the last week been safely conveyed from Chislehurst to their new burial place. A sarcophagus for the remains of the Prince Imperial has just been brought from Aberdeen by sea to Farnborough. It is understood that the Queen will attend the Farnborough ceremony.

THE GERMAN CROWN PRINCE.

The German Crown Prince is at Tombach, in the Tyrol, and spends much time in wandering over the mountains dressed in English costume. When informed as to the cause of unutterable disgust came to him, the Emperor was requested to remain, and the first ballot stood over him, and one or two acquired a few additional ballots, the man favoring him.

Mr. C. C. Calvert has been retained; none of the attorneys are ready to think that Hamilton will be successful.

THEATRICAL FIRE-TRAPS.

The newspapers devote a great deal of attention to the question of emptying the theaters in case of panic. This speculation has been stimulated by the Exeter disaster. Nearly all the principal London theaters are fire-traps, and it is difficult to avoid a panic in any of the leading houses if a fire should break out. Their exits, while numerous, are reached only by winding passages, confusing to those unfamiliar with them. A demand is now being made that all of the theaters shall be lighted by electricity. The London Lancers makes the best suggestion yet for the handling of a theater crowd in cases of panic. It asks that theaters, so far as discipline is concerned, be placed in the hands of the Home Secretary, who shall have a special corps of uniformed officials connected with the theater in any way, who will stand by the passage of distinct uniforms for the purpose of controlling the audience and to direct them to the exits. This paper calls attention to the fact that great crowds are handled on board ship without panics in the face of most serious disasters. If there were a corps of proper officials on duty at the theaters with authority to maintain discipline, the Lancers thinks that serious disasters in the way of panics would certainly be avoided. Henry Irving approves of this plan and says he will be willing to pay his proportion to the fund of £10,000 per year towards the maintenance of Governmental corps.

WOMEN AND GYMNASTIC EXERCISES.

The interest taken by women in gymnastic exercises is daily growing in England. At all of the gymsnasiums there are special instructors for women. The value of the instructions has been shown in two instances during the week. The wife of a prominent London athlete, who is herself in training, was walking up the stairs of Highbury Station the other night to take a train. She was alone. It was 11 o'clock in the evening. A half-drunk man came down, put his arm around her waist, and tried to kiss her. She wrung her self-loose from his grasp, torn off her yellow glove from her right hand, and struck out right and left at the shoulder, and knocking him down some fifteen steps, badly shaking him and thoroughly sobering him from fright. Annie Hill, manageress of the Princess Restaurant, Newcastle-on-Tyne, another lady athlete, seized a pickpocket last Thursday who was trying to rob her and dragged him into a shop where she had him till the police came to her relief. The magistrate rewarded her pluck by giving her £2.
